SIX CHILDREN AND FATHER DIE IN FIRE IN BELLEVILLE

Coal Miner Rescues Wife and Baby, but Perishes Trying to Arouse Other Members of Family.

DRYING CLOTHES
PROBABLY IGNITED

Mother Did Washing Nightly
Because of Household's Poverty — Five Found Dead in One Room.

THE father and six children of a poverty-stricken Belleville family were burned to death in a fire in their three-room frame home at 20 Indiana avenue early today.

The mother, her oldest son and 6-months-old baby, who escaped, are in St. Elizabeth's Hospital suffering from burns.

Ignition of clothes from the scanty wardrobe of the family, which the mother habitually washed every night and placed before the kitchen stove to dry, is believed to have caused the fire.

The dead:
John Haas, 45 years old, a coal miner.
Vernell, 9, a daughter.
Marguerite, 7.
Eleanor, 6.

Raymond, 4.
Irene Malone, 17, a daughter of Haas' wife by a former marriage.

Billy Malone, 14.
The injured:
Mrs. Haas, 45.
Oliver, 2 months old.
Martin Malone, 20.

Dies Trying to Save Others.
Has perished in an effort to save the children after he assisted his wife and the baby from the house, his widow told a Post-Dispatch reporter today.

"I awoke my husband shortly before 5 o'clock and asked him to get some milk for the baby," she said at the hospital. "I could hear him fighting the fire in the kitchen stove. A few minutes later he brought the milk and went back to restore the beauty of the falls."

BLIND GIRL WILL GET $45,000

Settlements for H. T. Keyser's Fall are to Wed Catherine G. Burke.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Miss Catherine, Genin Burke, blind honor graduate of Barnard College in 1922, will receive $45,000 as settlement of her suit against the estate of Henry T. Keyser, wealthy recluse, whom she alleged gave her a promissory note for $150,000 after declining to fulfill a pledge to marry her.

An order of compromise allowing the agreement has been signed by Surrogate Foley. Miss Burke's suit was for collection on the note. Keyser died here in 1924 at the age of 72.

53,222 SO FAR FAVOR RECALL

Anti-Miller Campaigners Only $231 Below Minimum Required.

Addition of 2148 signatures to the petitions for the recall of Mayor Miller in the last 24 hours brought the total to 53,222, the Miller Recall Committee announced today. A minimum of 60,456 is required.

Told of Tragedy.

Because of her hysterical condition, Mrs. Haas was not permitted to talk until six hours after her arrival at the hospital, but Martin was allowed to give a brief account of his experience. Neither knew at the time that seven of the family had died, but they were told of the tragedy later in the morning, after Martin had related his story.

"I woke up suddenly and found our room filled with smoke," he said. "It seemed to me someone had shouted 'fire.' I ran to the window, kicked out the glass and jumped to the roof of a shed. I let myself down to the ground. There was no time to save any of the girls."

Found Mother Outside.

It is likely that the shout Martin heard was sent up by John Miller, 31 Delaware avenue, his neighbor, who was aroused after Mrs. Miller was awakened by the smell of smoke from the Haas home.

Miller told a Post-Dispatch reporter that his wife called the department while he hurried into his clothes and ran to the Haas house. When he got there he found it filled with flames.

"I smashed in a downstairs window in the back of the house and started fire," he said. "There was no chance to enter the place. I ran around to the front of the house and found Mrs. Haas

GOVERNMENTAL SYSTEM AT STAKE; NOBODY CAN TELL WHAT MAY RESULT

England Will Never Be the Same Again
Whether the Cabinet or Labor Leaders Score Victory.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON, London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
Complete, 1926, by the Post and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., New York World.

LONDON, May 4.—The general strike began just midnight. Every attempt at negotiations having failed, the order of the General Council of the Trades Union Committee went into effect.

The Government's first step was the promulgation of an "Emergency Powers Regulation," signed by the King in council, abridging civil liberties.

Under these regulations any person believed or considered can assess without a warrant any person who is either "a witness who is suspected of being guilty" of an offense against the emergency regulations.

The regulations give the authorities
the right to commandeer
houses, cars, food, roads, coal, gasoline or anything else they may want for the public service.

Any Cabinet Minister is empowered to use the armed forces of the Crown at his discretion to blot out troops and move police from one area to another.

In short, the whole country is placed under what amounts to martial law.

The King's guards have been mobilized for emergencies in Wellington Barracks near Buckingham Palace. They poured forth in their cars and lorries in various directions. Four battalions of infantry in full field equipment left Aldershot for an unannounced destination.

There are many sober English men who think the Parliamentary system has broken down and that,
whatever the outcome of this great struggle, the historic Parliamentary session will in future be considered the last session of the Mother of Parliaments as the supreme power in the land.

Party Leaders Merely Talking.
Chancellor of the Exchequer Winston Churchill broadly hinted
as much in his final speech when he spoke of "drastic action," but as the session wore on it became more clear that the great figures of all parties, speaking with no newspapers to report them were merely talking, while the forces now in control of the nation were operating independently.

Both Baldwin and Churchill characterized the labor council as now constituting a rival government in England.

Summary of the Situation.

There is intense confusion in the popular mind, which extends through all classes, as to the meaning of the present unprecedented situation. The correspondent's impression of it is briefly this:

A class struggle not revolutionary in aim. All its chief leaders, in this case, are entirely sincere in their professions of loyalty to the constitution. But as J. H. Thomas, former cabinet minister, and now
one of the labor council, admitted in the House last night, forces have been loosed which may lead to results which no one can now foresee.

that nobody, not even the cabinet ministers had any idea of what would in the end result from the events transpiring.

Whether the Government or the workers win, England cannot remain, in case of complete victory for either side, what she has been,
a neutral balance of forces between capital and labor. It may mean,
if the workers win, that the trades unions, so long as they are as they hang together, and not parliament, will become the dominant power in government.

If, as is more probable, the Government wins, it may involve a complete collapse of the tradesmen movement, a general reduction of wages, perhaps to stan-dardization levels, and perhaps political reaction in an advanced form.

5,000,000 Workers Idle.

Five million men, half of them directly called out by the trade councils, including 1,150,000 coal miners, and the rest in the trades which the leaders of the first group forced to a standstill, are out of work today.

Labor's Own Organ Jeered.

The last London evening paper
to appear was the Evening Standard.
It was suppressed by the mechanical force about 3 p.m. because it attempted to publish a
"Call for Volunteers." A meeting of employees voted this to be Government propaganda.

Advertiser is the name of the newspaper which was published before midnight, carried a statement signed by 800 employees of Beaverbrook's morning paper, the Daily Express, replying to a statement in yesterday's issue
that the strike will fail.

casting station which is to be primarily the only means of disseminating the news, announced last evening that the maximum price
for food should be those prevailing in the open market Friday, the day before the coat strike. It became more and more clear that the Government intends to keep in touch with the public largely by radio.

The Daily Herald (Labour), warms its readers under full page headlines, "Beware of the Wireless."
The Government controls it." The Herald also prints a broad hint to strike sympathizers as to how to spoil the reception of wireless,
quoting an expert as saying: "It

Liberty, Not Wages, in Peril—All Because Mine Industry Demands State Support—Premier Baldwin

LONDON, May 4.—THE following excerpt is from Premier Baldwin's speech in the House of Commons yesterday, concerning the crisis that confronts Great Britain today:

"The owners and miners will have to find, or have found for them, some way of managing their own business independently of Government intervention, just the same as all the other great industries of the country do."

"We could not continue to pay wages to the miners and profits to the mine owners at the expense of the general tax-payers, because, after all, among the general taxpayers there are vast numbers of men who work long hours and a good deal more men who do not work at all."

"Stripped of all the accessories that was the position in which the Government found itself, it found itself challenged with an alternative government of long hours and a government leader of the way in which the commands were being carried out and incapable of arresting disobedience to them. It is no use distinguishing masters with words which conceal the truth. The miners have a dispute with the mine owners, who offer terms of work and pay which are rejected by the men, who refuse to accept either a minute extra or penny off. They attempt to throw on the state the burden of maintaining industry at a loss."

"The last hope of peace faded just after 11 p.m. yesterday when the most dramatic session of Commons in modern times came to an end. Throughout the evening the real interest centered, not in the speech in Commons, but in private conference between Premier Baldwin and representatives of the trades council. Though the conferences were of no avail, it was apparent that men like A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation, seemed to hold the direction of affairs in their hands on the one side, while the Cabinet, without much regard for Parliament, was acting for the other side."

City Takes on Martial Aspect.
London came more and more to take on a warlike aspect. Lorries filled with troops, machine guns and ammunition, dashed down Piccadilly. The closing of Hyde Park, in the very heart of the city yesterday, was announced officially as being due to the need for a depot for milk and food and for a transport base. It is thought the Government also intends to bivouac troops here.

Two battalions of soldiers in steel helmets, with full marching equipment, were landed at Liverpool yesterday evening from Port-of-Spain, with the aid of volunteers, maintaining a skeleton service of tram cars and buses and the two evening newspapers continued to publish.

LONDON TRAFFIC IN A JAM, DUE TO STRIKE ORDER

Traffic congestion became so hopeless that passengers were forced to desert their lobbies and motor cars
and make their way to work on foot.

Seven large theaters in the west and of London today announced that they would close during the strike. The managers said they were unable to transport their seattered casts and as the audiences are so largely dependent on suburban transportation, it seemed futile to keep open.

The motion picture houses generally are remaining open.

The legitimate theaters of London employ nearly 5000 persons.

The monetary loss to the country
from the strike already amounts to £10,000,000 a day, about $25, 000,000 to $30,000,000.

Some think the press figures may double
this figure, and even that estimate does not take into account the ultimate effect on industry.

One hope was that the miners
would agree to talk with the owners and the Government on the basis of a possible reduction of wages, while the Government kept further negotiations for the settlement of the mine dispute could be held. This was at no time seriously considered.

RUSH OF AMERICAN TOURISTS
TO GET OUT OF ENGLANDAirplanes to Paris Fired, and Civilians Leave London in Fletillas for Channel Ports.SON-IN-LAW SAYS
E. W. GROVE MADE
FIVE OR SIX WILLSBy the Associated Press.
LONDON, May 4.—The American tourists in England fled before the general strike as birds before a storm. Every available airplane was filled today, with passengers for Paris and charabancs
left in flotillas for the channels, carrying tourists who were unable to leave England yesterday
because of the inability of the railroads to provide enough trainsALLEGES COMPACT WITH TESTATORDeclares He Carried Out
His Part of Bargain Then Will in His Favor Was Destroyed.

"His wills are not dependable," said F. L. Seely, speaking of his father-in-law, E. W. Grove of 5361
Westminster place, millionaire patent medicine maker, in a deposition filed yesterday in Circuit Judge Itiner's court. "Grove has made five or six wills in the last few

Seely's deposition was taken at Asheville, N. C., in the suit filed here by him last December, involving Grove's will. The suit was unusual in that, though relating to a will, it was brought while Grove was living, as he still is.

Seely testified to the circumstances of a will made by Grove in 1911, and said it was drawn by former Judge George H. Williams,
now United States Senator. This was the will in which, according to Seely's allegations, Grove left to Seely his option of taking a controlling interest in the Paris Medicine Co. or all Grove's property outside the medicine company. Seely also alleged that this will has since been destroyed, though he has carried out his part of the agreement on which the will was based.

Hears of a Brand-New Will.
"Mr. Grove told me to tell Judge Williams what put into the will," Seely said in his deposition. "The will
was drawn in Judge Williams' office,
and was signed in my presence.
Now, Mr. Grove admits that he has destroyed it. He has stated that he has made a new will, leaving his property in trust with the St. Louis Union Trust Co. for the benefit of his wife, son and daughter." The daughter of Mrs. Seely said that Grove told her that the medicine company had noticed that he was not making a profit, so he had quit the company.

AMERICAN CLEARED OF CHARGE OF INSULTING MUSSOLINI
John Adams Abbott Must Still Face Charge of Assaulting a Guide at Rome.

ROME, May 4.—An investigating magistrate today ordered the immediate release of John Adams Abbott, member of a prominent Boston family, who has been held in jail here for the last week. The charge that he had insulted Premier Mussolini was shown to be unfounded.

Telling of the occasion for the agreement, Seely said in the deposition: "Mrs. Seely suggested that we get away, and start over again.
Mr. Grove objected to this, and agreed to compensate me if I would remain with the Paris Medicine Co." Seely then told of the differences which caused him to leave the company in 1911, and to take charge of Grove's hotel property, Grove Park Inn, near Asheville.

Charges Broken Faith.
In his petition, Seely said he charged that Grove violated the terms of a contract with him, by building the new Battery Park Hotel in 1924, in competition with another wing of Grove Park Inn. Seely has charged that the two houses catered to the same class of trade, but depositions of other persons, denying this, and differentiating between the two hotels in the class of their patrons,
have been filed.

Seely, in his deposition, tells how his acquaintance with Grove began.
He said he was employed by the Park-Davis Co. in Detroit at $35
a week, when he met Grove, who was trying to perfect his formula for a patent medicine. He said he helped Grove work out a satisfactory formula, and in 1897 went to work for Grove, and for two and a half years made the same salary he had been making with his former employers. He married Grove's daughter in February, 1898.

Seely's Rise in Power.
Later he said he was secretary and treasurer of the Paris Medicine Co., started by Mr. Grove while he was running a drug store in Paris. Term, and received $3600 a year. He was questioned about gifts to his wife and extra payments to himself, and said Grove paid him $7500 for his work in planning and building Grove Park Inn, and that Mrs. Seely received Christmas presents of $1000 to $1500, and for three years past received royalty shares amounting to $25,000 a year.

Seely said he went into real estate enterprises in Atlanta, and made a large sum of money there,
and that he owned the daily newspaper, the Georgian, for six years.
He sold it to William R. Hearst at a profit, repaying a loan from Grove with interest.

He said that, before the building of the new Battery Park Hotel, Grove, owed $1,400,000, and that the banks objected to his incurring further indebtedness. He told also of "wresters" in the Paris Medicine Co. organization, which he, Seely, helped to allay.

An only business associate of Grove, A. H. Duncan of Harmony
Center, Texas, was named by Seely
as having put $600 into the business, and having sold his interest to Grove, after a disagreement, for

MRS. IRIS CREWS.WOMAN GIVEN
NINE MONTHS FOR
THEFT OF $1300Mrs. Iris Crews Sentenced to Workhouse When She Halted Trial to Enter Plea of Guilty.

A well-dressed woman of apparent education and refinement sat in Circuit Judge Mix's court yesterday and heard the Judge say
"Nine months in the Workhouse."

She had just entered a plea of guilty of embezzling $1302.45 last August from W. F. Childs & Co., sugar brokers in the Planters Building, who had employed her
as cashier and bookkeeper.

There will be no parole for Mrs.
Iris Crews this time. It is her second clash with the law. In June, 1922, she was sentenced to a year in the Workhouse for stealing an automobile, but Judge Killoren stayed the sentence and placed her on probation.

Stop Trial to Plead Guilty.
Yesterday, she first pleaded not guilty and went to trial on the embezzlement charge. But after Harvey D. Smith, manager of the brokerage house, and Miss Patricia D'Orsay, bookkeeper, had told of discrepancies in Mrs. Crews' accounts, the defendant held a whispered consultation with her attorney.
She then withdrew her plea of not guilty and the nine-month sentence was agreed upon, this being satisfactory to the insurance company which had bonded her.

Mrs. Crews says she is 27 years old, and a graduate of Wellesley College. She tells the story of her life, from her days in high social station. The daughter of John Thompson, late shoe magnate of Brockton, Mass., she speaks of college days, debutante days and her first marriage to Robert Donovan, son of another Brockton shoe manufacturer. They moved to St. Louis where Donovan was connected with the Brown Shoe Co., she says, and here a daughter was born. Donovan died and the widow sent her daughter to live with her mother in Chatham, Mass. The child is now 9 years old.

Married Second Time.

In the course of the proceedings
the prosecuting attorney read extracts from Saklatvala's speech in Hyde Park, which a policeman took down in shorthand. He was quoted in part as saying:

"We saw a vanload of blackshirts
in Oxford street, with nothing in sight but union jacks.
The union jack has for hundreds of years been doing nothing but harboring fools and rogues."

"We know they are preparing to fight us. We know they are preparing to kill us. They are preparing to throw bombs."

Another extract from the speech of Saklatvala read by the prosecuting attorney was:

"We want to tell the army boys
that they must revolt now and refuse to fight. I want navy boys to march behind every English housewife when she goes out to purchase food, and I want the army and navy ready to protect the people instead of the rogues and thieves of the master classes."

The prosecutor said he relied on that passage to support the charge that Saklatvala incited the armed forces of the nation not to do their duty.

Saklatvala was released on bail
in his own recognizance and a bond of $300.

The action against Saklatvala, it is stated, was taken at the direction of the Attorney General, but the execution of the warrant was deferred purposely so that the communist members could attend yesterday's session of the House of Commons without interference.

The dealers, Walter Miller and John Golden, had applied to the Circuit Court last March for the junction. Circuit Judge Itiner, at that time, issued a temporary
restraining order against the police.
In April the city was flooded with slot machines and pending a hearing Judge Calhoun modified Judge Itiner's order so as to permit police to seize such machines
as were considered gambling devices. The machines were withdrawn.

Today Judge Calhoun heard argument of counsel for the slot machine dealers, who declared the machines were "silent salesmen" of mints. Without asking for police testimony the Judge threw the petition out of court.
Miller and Golden said they would appeal.

The Haugen bill, to create a $375,000,000 revolving fund to stabilize agricultural prices, was made the order of business. After discussion of this measure had been completed, the Tingley credit measure, endorsed by Secretary Jardine, and the Curtis-Aswell community marketing bill will come up as substitutes.

The Democrats of the Missouri congressional delegation went on record last night unanimously for the Haugen bill.

INJUNCTION IS REFUSED SLOT MACHINE DEALERS

They Threaten to Appeal, But Meantime Last Bar to Police Raids Is Removed.

The last bar to police raids on slot machines was removed by Circuit Judge Calhoun today when he dismissed the application of two slot machine dealers for an injunction against police interference with their business.

The dealers, Walter Miller and John Golden, had applied to the Circuit Court last March for the junction. Circuit Judge Itiner, at
that time, issued a temporary
restraining order against the police.

The Prime Minister's remark was answered by Laborite tries. "He had nothing whatever to do with the present situation."

Saklatvala was barred from the United States by Secretary Kellogg
a few months ago when he proposed to attend a meeting of the Inter-parliamentary union in Washington.

The Dutch market at present is dominated by Ruhr coal and an increase in the export of Ruhr coal to Holland is anticipated. As far as France and Belgium are concerned it is assumed that any deficiency in the supply of British coal will be made good by German coal as part of reparation payments.

DUBLIN, Ireland, May 4.—Cir-

ment of labor affected in the Free State today by the British general strike. Cargo boats to and from Holyhead, Glasgow and Heysham
were not running and no perishables were taken for shipment by the Liverpool boats. Mail steamer service to England was maintained,

her condition and attending doctors expressed the opinion she would recover. She told them she had taken the poison because she was tired of life.

VANDERBILT PAPER

Petition in Bankruptcy for Los Angeles Tabloid Filed by Holding Company.

By the Associated Press
LOS ANGELES, May 4.—Meredith G. Snyder, former Mayor of Los Angeles, has been appointed receiver for the Illustrated Daily News, Los Angeles tabloid newspaper.

Petition for a receiver was filed in Federal Court yesterday by Vanderbilt Newspapers Inc., the holding company for the three tabloids established in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Miami by Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

The Daily News Publishing Co. filed an answer to the petition in which it joined in asking the appointment of a receiver. Bonds for the receiver were placed at $100,000.

The petition listed the assets of the News at $1,045,000 and its liabilities at $1,000,000. Among the debts listed was May 1 payroll of $18,000, which the petition stated could not be met.

The petitioners also asked that a temporary injunction be issued to restrain the management of the paper from interfering with the receiver.

By the Associated Press
SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—An order suspending the Daily Illustrated Herald, the Vanderbilt tabloid newspaper here, was received yesterday from the headquarters of the Vanderbilt organization in Los Angeles.

Vanderbilt Attributes Receivership to New York Reports

By the Associated Press
NEW YORK, May 4.—Filing of a petition for a receiver for the Los Angeles Illustrated Daily News was necessitated, Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. said last night, by unfavorable reports from New York which made it impossible for him to get financial assistance.

Vanderbilt said his Los Angeles attorney, who has been investigating financial offers made in California, "has reported that different men and groups making bona fide offers have been told by their banks of statements from New York correspondent banks that my family is not only unwilling further to aid my enterprises, but that my family thinks it best that my corporation should go into bankruptcy."

"The spread of these discouraging statements, whether true or false, has made it impossible to float the immediate loans necessary to carry the papers during this necessary period of negotiation."

The Miami Tab, he said, will continue to appear, and its management will co-operate with the receiver for the Illustrated Daily News to meet the obligations in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

San Francisco Paper Issued by Employees

SAN FRANCISCO, May 4.—The San Francisco Illustrated Herald, the second illustrated newspaper started by Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., was in the hands of employees today.

Ordered to suspend publication yesterday, the editor called a meeting of the employees and they resolved to carry on and issued the paper today, cutting it from 26 to 12 pages.

Pabst-ett the Most Delicious Spread for Bread

SOMETHING new—something different—something more delicious. That is Pabst-ett, the new and finer food made by a process that retains the nutritive qualities of whole milk—proteins, milk sugar, and body-building mineral elements formerly lost in cheese-making. Pabst-ett has a rich, individual flavor. It spreads easily at ordinary temperature and slices appetizingly when cold. The unpleasant after-effects which many people have often thought resulted from cheese-eating are not caused by Pabst-ett. Try Pabst-ett as a spread for bread or crackers, for sandwiches and salads. There is nothing finer or more digestible. Order from your grocer.

SON CLUBS FATHER,
STABS HIS SISTER

Attack on Former Head of Auto Society Attributed to Business Row.

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Md., May 4.—Police today searched for Harry M. Rowe Jr., who last night fractured the skull of his father, Dr. Harry M. Rowe, a Baltimore business man, stabbed his sister, Portia, 15, twice and caused severe injuries to his stepmother in their home on the family estate at Catonsville, a suburb.

The injuries of the father, inflicted with an iron bar and those of his daughter, may prove fatal. Mrs. Rowe suffered a broken arm and the loss of a finger.

Police, called by Mrs. Rowe, broke into the house to find the elder Rowe, who is treasurer of the Carozza-Rowe Construction Co. and a former president of the American Automobile Association, slumped in a chair in the wrecked library. Four deep gashes were in his head.

Trails of blood leading about the library, up the stairway and through the upper story of the house, attested the fierceness of the struggle. Mrs. Rowe was found wandering in a hysterical condition. Portia had fallen unconscious from her wounds at the garden's house, where she had sought haven.

At a hospital, Mrs. Rowe told the police, Harry J. had entered suddenly while they were reading in the library. Without speaking he beat his father about the head with a bar. He also carried a knife she said. When Mrs. Rowe and Portia went to the aid of the elder Rowe, who is 67, the younger man stabbed the girl in the breast and threw his stepmother in the fireplace, she said.

Portia fled from the house only to be overtaken and stabbed in the back. Returning to the house, the maddened man sought Mrs. Rowe, who in escaping, leaped from a second story window, breaking her arm and tearing off a finger.

Harry Jr. is believed to have left the scene in his automobile. He is 30 years old and lives in Annapolis. A business disagreement with his father two years ago, which resulted in the younger man's dismissal from the construction company and caused bitterness between them may have been the motive for the attack, Mrs. Rowe told officers.

CHRYSLER IMPERIAL "80" AS FINE AS MONEY CAN BUILD

Make That the Basis of Your Judgment

LET us make this one fact clear—the Chrysler Imperial "80" is offered you solely on the basis that it is "as fine as money can build".

Don't look for merely ordinary performance, for the Imperial "80" will give you the smoothest ride of your life up to 80 miles and more per hour.

Don't look for comfort comparable only with that of other cars in the $3000 to $7000 class, for there are built into the Imperial "80" comfort features and results that excel anything on wheels.

Don't look for mere fanciness or for nothing more than expensive looking trimmings, for the Imperial "80" is designed in supreme good taste and to a degree of luxury incomparable.

Please keep in mind this one thought—the Chrysler Imperial "80" is as fine as money can build. And then go see the Imperial "80"—drive it, ride in it, both front and rear seats. We'll leave the judgment to you.

BIG OFFENSIVE AGAINST GANGLAND IN CHICAGO

Illinois Attorney-General in Charge of Campaign to Suppress Gunmen.

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 4.—A vigorous campaign against liquor feudism and gang warfare under a unified command has been planned by every law enforcement agency in Chicago and Cook County.

The co-ordination of effort to wage an offensive against gangland was arranged at a conference with Oscar Carlstrom, state Attorney-General, who is taking part in a special grand jury investigation of crime conditions in the city and county.

The jury impaneled yesterday has adjourned until Thursday, when it has been intimated by State's Attorney Crowe, a first indictment will be returned.

Plan for Co-ordination.

"The hour has struck for an uprising of the citizenry against gunmen and gang rule," said Carlstrom after a meeting with civil authorities. "The heads of every law enforcement agency in the city and county met with me and agreed to a plan for co-ordination of effort against our common enemies."

"We are going to make it just as uncomfortable for criminals as we can."

The Attorney-General, who assumed supervisory control of the investigation at the request of Crowe, said he would "remain in the situation just as long as it is desired, and so long as I can be helpful in directing the inquiry."

The grand jury investigation resulted from the slaying a week ago of William H. McSwiggan, hanging prosecutor of the State's Attorney's staff, and two companions.

In charging the jury, Judge William V. Brothers ordered a thorough search for the underlying causes of crime and directed the jury to favor or shield none.

Unlimited power to inquire and punish was given.

The First Witness.

The first witness were Mary Eugene Kelly, president of the Union League Club, who had demanded an investigation free from politics; Coroner Wolff, political foe of State's Attorney Crowe, and Theodore Srohoda, Police Chief of Cicero, the suburb where McSwiggan and two companions were slain by machine gun bullets. The police chief has criticised Crowe's investigation of the crime.

The three were called presumably for questioning regarding any personal knowledge of a lineup among bootlegging, beer war murderers and politicians.

Coroner Wolff's jury of prominent Chicagoans resumed hearing inquest witnesses behind closed doors today.

After the grand jury adjournment, Crowe and Attorney-General Carlstrom announced they would ask the City Council to purchase 16 high-powered automobiles for police use.

COLLINSVILLE COAL RATE $1.65 Court Decision Reverses Order of Illinois Commerce Commission.

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 4.—Judge David M. Brothers in Circuit Court has reversed on appeal an order of the Illinois Commerce Commission reducing the rate on coal from $1.65 per ton from Collinsville to Chicago to $1.65 per ton. The Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railway appealed the case.

The Lumaghi Coal Co. of Col-

linsville, located in the Danville district, which pays a ratio of $1.65, obtained consent of the commission in 1923 to fix its technical location in the Springfield zone, which pays a rate of $1.65.

"I LOVE YOU"

THREE WORDS . . . three words which burn with youth, with hope, with all things clean and fine. Three words which ring ever youthful throughout our lives. Three words which—alone of all words of which man is master—hold that sovereign magic to mock the slow ebbings of the days, the turnings of the seasons, the endless circlings of the years.

And so it was that at the words, "I'm in love with you, Callista Bayne," everything—pride, hunger, vanity, and fear—was forgotten in the sheltering harbor of a splendid love.

BRAMBLE BUSH, by Stacey Hutchings, is a glorious story of love and youth that calls to the eternal youth that lies in every one of us. Complete in the May Journal, NOW ON SALE, ten cents.

Black Water

By Hugh MacNair Kahler

Even the midday sun, filtering through interwoven branch and creeper, threw but a fitful light on the tangled maze of waterways which made Black Water a name of terror.

A few squatters lurked in its furthest depths—a strange, wild race, capable of even the strangest of that whirl of strange events in which Mark Dutton found himself plunged, once he had looked into the cool, gray eyes of Marian Farre.

BLACK WATER, one of the strongest stories of the year, begins in the May Journal, NOW ON SALE, ten cents.

How Harold Lloyd Makes You Laugh

Tonight tens of thousands will laugh and thrill at the antics of a tall, solemn, young man with great horn-rimmed spectacles.

Yet how much keener would be their interest if they but knew the tremendous amount of brains and thought that goes into the making of one of these comedies.

Here, in this fascinating article, Harold Lloyd tells you the whole story. Starting with the years before he arrived at stardom, he outlines everything—and even reveals some interesting details of the making of his latest picture. Complete in the May Journal, NOW ON SALE, ten cents.

Other Features in the May Journal

Four splendid short stories, four novels and a one-act play swell the list of fiction to a total of eleven. And all by such favorite authors as Booth Tarkington, Zane Grey, Albert Payson Terhune, Sophie Kerr, and Elsie Singmaster.

Maude Adams continues her own wonderful story of her life and art. The Princess Cantacuzène writes on Russia and its refugees. S. Josephine Baker, M.D., pleads for a proper home for every child. Corra Harris and Alice Ames Winter share with you their treasured experience with life. And Giulio Gatti-Casazza tells of his thirty years in opera.

Fourteen fashion features picture your summer wardrobe. A round dozen of articles—and two over for good measure—help you with your housekeeping, your needlework, and your home-making. Five art features and half a dozen poems minister to your love of the beautiful; and, for the children—and all who love them—there are Rose O'Neill's adorable Kewpies.

10 Years Younger in 10 Days—

You, too, can have hair free from those telltale streaks of gray—hair glowing with health and youthful beauty. Just make this test—as thousands of men and women have done. Get a bottle of Kolor-Bak and use as directed. This wonderful preparation is not sticky or messy to apply—just a clean, colorless, pleasant liquid almost like water. But it has the remarkable power to restore any gray hair to its natural shade. Kolor-Bak does not change the hair coloring instantly, as do ordinary dyes. It works more gradually, yet a week often suffices to accomplish desired results. And while restoring the color, it also acts as a tonic, routing dandruff and giving the hair a lustrous, soft texture.

Ask for Kolor-Bak today. No sample necessary. The same bottle is for any gray hair. If desired results do not appear, we will return your money. Guarantee in each package.

DANDRUFF IS AN INFECTION that can be destroyed

Hair specialists say dandruff is a dangerous infection which causes most baldness and that only two simple things are required to destroy it and restore the hair to vigorous health.

First: In addition to soap and water cleanliness the scalp must be disinfected—freed completely from dandruff germs.

The gentle safe antiseptic in Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine destroys dandruff germs.

more effectively than any other known preparation.

Second: The sluggish scalp must be invigorated by a tingling flow of blood.

Special stimulating ingredients in Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine stir the contracted blood vessels to new activity so that they nourish the hair roots, muscles and glands.

BEGIN TODAY to free your hair from every trace of dandruff. All drugists and department stores have Ed. Pinaud's Eau de Quinine Hair Tonic. Each bottle bears the signature of Ed. Pinaud. Pinaud Incorporated, 90 Fifth Avenue, New York.

A Great Musical Achievement

The New Reproducing Sonora

THE new reproducing Sonora not only perfectly reproduces the entire chromatic scale but it reproduces that second phase of reproduction which is required to realistically reproduce music—Color Tone! Color tones give distinguishing character and richness. These subtle shadings and delicate nuances distinguish one instrument from another and give that beautiful expression to music which musicians term "timbre." This, greatest of musical reproducing achievements, is to be heard now in our Music Salons. Hear the new reproducing Sonora and Marvel.

SAYS HOUSEWIVES
FEAR NO BREAD TRUST

Governor Addresses Opening of Convention of Associated Bakers of America Here.

America need never fear a monopoly on bread, for the housewives would break it up in 12 hours, Gov. Baker told delegates to the convention of the Associated Bakers of America at their opening meeting at the New Coliseum yesterday afternoon. He added, however, that housewives had come to the realization that it was cheaper to buy than to bake bread. The Governor's address officially opened the convention, which will close Saturday night.

A delightful aroma of coffee permeated the building as guests and delegates began to file in early in the afternoon and coffee and doughnuts and fancy pastries were served to the visitors.

The entire floor space of the Coliseum is lined with booths—ninety-four of them—advertising everything from malt to large baking ovens.

Early yesterday 800 delegates from 15 states had registered and 2000 are expected by tonight, officials said. Delegates are here from Boston and from Texas. The convention maintains headquarters at Hotel Chase and exhibition rooms in the Coliseum.

A meeting of the executive board of the association followed the opening ceremony and last night a dinner and reception were held at Hotel Chase.

Mayor Miller delivered the address of welcome at this morning's meeting and was responded to by Eugene Lipp, past president of the Associated Bakers. Michael Hoffman of St. Louis was in the chair at the opening session. Auto rides and dinners fill tonight's program. Election of officers will be held Friday morning.

FIGUREHEAD SULTAN TAKES STEP FOR MOROCCAN PEACE

Hints to French Not to Insist on the Banishment of Riffian Leader.

By the Associated Press

FEZ, French Morocco, May 4.—The Sultan of Morocco, Mulai Yussouf, called a figurehead under the protectorate of France and Spain, has taken the initiative to save the Moroccan peace conference. Journeying from Rabat to Fez in Oriental pomp, the Sultan summoned Gen. Simon, head of the French delegation, and said in the words of an official communiqué that he feels peace can be realized without prejudice to his own shirifian power and sovereignty. The Sultan added that his own desires were also those of all the Moroccan population."

This is interpreted as a request from the Sultan that the Franco-Spanish delegations cease to insist upon the banishment of Abd-el-Krim, the Riffian chief. This would remove one of the disputed clauses in the peace terms to come up at Oujda Thursday.

COUNTY JUDGE SMILEY FACES PERJURY CHARGE

County Officer Characterizes the Action as a Political Attack.

Presiding Judge Smiley of the St. Louis County Court, or administrative body, today characterized as a political attack the charge of perjury against him in a warrant issued last night, growing out of a real estate deal four years ago. He is a Democrat and has been referred to as the "one-man opposition party" in the court, his two colleagues being machine Republicans.

The deal was made shortly before Judge Smiley assumed office after a bitter political fight, when the Clear Eleventh League got the machine. Judge Smiley and his associates in the real estate business, John Sidebotham and L. William Gerling, bought the dwelling of Mrs. Emma Olson in Home Heights, St. Louis County, and traded it to Fred Gehlert of St. Charles road for a farm near Greenville, Ill.

Mrs. Olson, in a suit, had her sale set aside on the ground that a second deed of trust for $4000, instead of a first deed, had been given her by Smiley and his associates. Gehlert's farm had been sold to somebody else, so last June he obtained a judgment for $9500 against Smiley, Sidebotham and Gerling from Circuit Judge McElhenny, at Clayton.

Judge of the Peace Worley of Luxembourg issued the warrant against Smiley on application by Gehlert, who alleged that Smiley had examined before Judge McElhenny Jan. 16, to determine his assets. He declared he had owned no real estate during the last two years except three lots near Bridgeton, whereas he had other property, including 10 lots in the Imperial Valley, Clayton.

Smiley today disclosed a deed, acknowledged by a notary publican Dec. 23 last, showing he had transferred the Imperial Valley lots to his mother. He asserted the charge was a scheme to oppose his coming effort to be re-elected to the County Court, and denied he had perfumed himself. A suit for receivership, filed against Smiley, Sidebotham and Gerling March 3, alleging they had attempted to conceal assets, is pending at Clayton.

STATE TO SUE
JACKSON COUNTY
FOR $500,000Amount Alleged to Be Due
as Result of Illegal Tax Assessment Reductions
by Local Board.PRACTICE EXTENDED OVER 6-YEAR PERIODTotal of Reductions About $36,000,000 — Issue Involved
One of Statewide Importance.

The Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 4.—A fight by the State to compel Jackson County authorities to put back on the tax books approximately $36,000,000 in alleged illegal tax assessment reductions made in the last six years, and to compel the county to comply with the State law regulating assessments, was started today by the State Board of Equalization.

The board directed Attorney-General N. T. Gentry to file suit in Supreme Court to collect about $600,000 in taxes lost through the reductions in 1921-1925, and to force the Jackson County Board of Equalization to set aside a reluctance of the writer's work during the year—$500. Awarded to the New York Times for the editorial entitled "The House of a Hundred Sorrows," written by Edward M. Kingsbury, published Dec. 14, 1925.

Reporter Wins $1000.
For the best example of a reporter's work during the year, the test being strict accuracy, terseness, and moral purposes, sound reasoning and power to influence public opinion in the right direction, due account being taken of the whole volume of the writer's work during the year—$500. Awarded to the New York Times for the editorial entitled "The House of a Hundred Sorrows," written by Edward M. Kingsbury, published Dec. 14, 1925.GEORGE KELLY,
Author of "Craig's Wife," awarded prize as the best American play produced in 1925.Cases Fund which is distributed through the Times.

Before he joined the staff of the Times Kingsbury was for many years an editorial writer on the Sun. Edward Page Mitchell, in his book "Memoirs of an Editor," declares that Kingsbury, as much as anyone, shaped the famous "Sun" styles which made that paper under Dana's editorship one of the most distinctive in the country.

Kingsbury was born in 1884. He was graduated from Harvard in 1905, and in 1917 was admitted to the Massachusetts bar. He became a member of the Sun's editorial staff in 1882 and remained with the paper until the chance of ownership in 1915, when he went to the Times.

UNANIMOUS AS TO PLAY.
The award in drama was recommended unanimously by a jury composed of Augustus Thompson, chairman; Owen Davis and Walter Prichard Eaton. The jury is the award in history selected as the most noteworthy book Bernard Fay's "L'Esprit Revolutionnaire en France et aux Etats-Unis la la la du 18 siècle," but it was held to be ineligible under the terms of the award and the prize was therefore awarded to Prof. Channing's sixth volume of "The History of the United States."

The award for the history of the services rendered to the public by the American press was not made because of lack of competition.

AWARDS IN LETTERS.
Previous investigation by Statistician L. D. Thompson and the State Tax Commission disclosed the total reduction of $29,582,622 in bank assessments from State Board valuations, were made by the Jackson County Court in 1921-1925. Most of these reductions were made before the annual tax payment periods and were entered on the tax books as due to "clerical errors."

State officials declared that in instances the "clerical errors" explanation merely was an excuse for a tax reduction. This is the first year the County Board of Equalization made the reductions. The bank assessments involved on the capital, surplus and undivided profits of banks which are assessed at their full value by the State board as provided by law.

Real estate of the banks is assessed under another classification. For several years banks of the State have made annual profits against full value assessment of their capital, surplus and undivided profits containing it was discriminatory because other classes of property were not uniformly assessed at their full value.

REPRESENTATION OF THE LAW.
In theory full valuation is required for all assessments in Mississippi, but a considerable part of the taxable property is assessed on a fractional basis.

Several other counties attempted to make reductions from the State board valuations this year, but reduced them on orders from the State board. Such reductions were not made on the books in Cole, Jasper and Buchanan counties. Assessment reports of other counties are being checked for such reductions.

Collins, caught in an underground chasm at Cave City, Ky., until militia arrived to take charge of the situation. Even then he slipped past the soldiers on guard and risked his life to make a last visit to the entrapped Collins.

Miller, known as "Skeets," was born in Louisville, and went directly from High School to the police court beat of the Post. Later he joined the staff of the Courier Journal. He is now only 22. He wanted to be a singer, he said, and had become a reporter to get money to take him to Europe for a musical education.

He had been three years at the Courier Journal, when he was sent one night to investigate the story that a man had been caught 80 feet underground in a sandstone cave. Miller took complete charge of the rescue of Floyd Collins the following morning. He is small, weighs about 110 pounds, and was able to slip down the tortuous passage until he lay beside Collins, with his fingers dug deep into the earth which obscured Collins' foot. The earth was passed out carefully by handfuls by a chain of 12 volunteers who crept down after Miller. In a story to his paper later Miller wrote of his work:

"I hurt him when I press too heavy on him while working. But he grits his teeth and stands it as long as he can. He helped me a great deal, getting to my rock which was beyond the reach. By moving so much of it I was able to use an automobile jack which had been sawed in two to make it small enough. I wedged the jack in against the big stone holding Collins' foot and put my weight against it. Collins said I pushed it—that he could feel it—but the gravel and small rocks rolled down."

MADE SEVEN TRIPS.
In all Miller made seven trips into the cave. He wrote:

"It is terrible inside. The cold, dirty water numbs me as soon as I start in. I have come to dread it, as have all others who have been in but each of us tell ourselves that our suffering is nothing compared back to his native State, Georgia, and bought the Enquirer-Sun. "I ought to say that a very great deal of the credit for our continuous fight for justice and tolerance, and against bigotry and ignorance," he wrote in a letter recently, "was due to Julia Collier Harris. It was she who urged me to take up the fight for the rights of the Negroes in the teaching of the theory of evolution. And she also handles editorials and articles in connection with art, music, literature and education. Her articles from Dayton, Tenn., were a factor in stopping the 1925 effort to bar the teaching of evolution in Georgia. She has written for the Nation, the Journal of Social Forces, the Herald-Tribune's book magazine, and is the author of 'The Life and Letters of Joel Chandler Harris' and 'The Founding Prince.' She is not only vice-president of the Enquirer-Sun Co., but is a fearless associate, unyielding in the face of injustice of any kind, and a constant inspiration."

COMMITTEE TO VOTE ON BILL.

After obtaining this appropriation, Smith and the other advocates of a comprehensive system of practical waterways set about to frame legislation to complete the system of waterways within five years.

Accordingly the bill known as H. R. 11616 was framed and introduced in the House. Immediately afterwards a bitter fight was made upon the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway, which is included in the bill, by certain advocates of the proposed St. Lawrence route from the Great Lakes to the sea.

"For the past two months," said Smith, "every possible effort has been made to prevent the committee from reporting this bill out, and not until the past week had the committee given its approval of the bill. Next Tuesday has been agreed on as the date for discussion and vote on the bill."

From the beginning of their ownership, Mr. and Mrs. Harris consistently opposed the Ku Klux Klan and more recently the present State administration. The Klan paraded in front of newspaper offices to intimidate them and is linked with a plot to blow up the apartment house in which they lived. During the fight the Enquirer-Sun lost 20 per cent of its circulation.

OBJECTION MADE AGAINST THE LAKES-TO-THE-GULF WATERWAY.

The objection made against the Lakes-to-the-Gulf waterway has been instigated by the combined power interests of the United States and Canada who are opposing the present diversion of water from Lake Michigan at Chicago and who want additional water for the creation of electrical power on the St. Lawrence River.

OTHER PROJECTS BENEFITED.

"We believe we have sufficient votes in the House to pass the bill, which contains a number of projects of great interest to the Mississippi Valley. The most important of these is the project connecting the Great Lakes, by way of the Illinois and Mississippi Rivers to the Gulf of Mexico."

In addition to the Illinois waterway, the bill provides for the beginning of work on the intracoastal waterway from the Mississippi River through to all the important Texas ports as far south as Corpus Christi. The completion of this project would be of great value to the entire Mississippi Valley in trade relations with Louisiana and Texas. Last summer both Mr. and Mrs. Harris went to Dayton, Tenn., to report the Scopes trial and lost 400 Fundamentalist subscribers as a result.

THE NEWSPAPER HAS BEEN ONE OF THE FEW IN THE SOUTH TO PROTEST VIOLENTLY AGAINST THE LYNNING OF NEGROES.

The bill also provides a nine-foot channel on the upper Mississippi and Missouri rivers, instead of a six-foot channel already planned. This would simplify year-round navigation between Pittsburgh and New Orleans, Kansas City, Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul.

ST. LOUIS HUB OF SYSTEM.

"St. Louis will be hub of the greatest system of cheap waterway transportation in the world," said Smith, "and the great advantages accruing therefrom will make our city one of the greatest industrial centers of the world."

In a few days Smith will return to Washington to work with Representative Newton for a vote at this session in both houses of Congress on the waterways bill.

River Traffic Revival.

The Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
THE Government towboat Wynoka
and five barges, carrying 12,500 tons
of ballast, have reached St. Paul, Minn.

is the news in your Sunday edition. It is a new venture to the present generation,
at least. It may be of interest for them to know that the excursion boat St. Paul,

which was one of the old fleet

that 20 years ago made regular trips to her namesake city. May I also add that the J. S. excursion boat made the same trip under the name Sidney, the Dubuque,

under the present name Capital City, did likewise.

So you will see that the present venture is not of the miracle kind to the last generation of mankind. The gratifying part of the story of the trip is the revelation that the coming boats would be the old-fashioned stern-wheel paddle boat and not the heavy and unwieldy propeller kind now used in the lower river.

Another good omen is that Mr. Cox,
the New York City naval architect (builder of the propeller boats), takes the advice of Mr. Tarn, who built all the large towboats at Pittsburg and puts it out of reach of a failure as to the style of boat and draft of water at hand.

The Goltra boats were built for this trade by the Government, but were never used for this purpose because of too much draft of water and weight.

Daylight Saving.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
NOW that we have a Mayor who may not be under any obligations to the moving picture people, would it not be a nice thing if we had daylight saving in St. Louis so as to keep abreast of other large cities such as Chicago, Pittsburgh,
New York, etc. R. K. JONES.

Physical Training at City Sanitarium.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

LAST year some wonderful work was done at the City Sanitarium by giving inmates of this institution systematic physical training exercises.

The Post-Dispatch, realizing the value of exercise to the patients, was kind enough to send a photographer to the sanitarium, so that through this great newspaper, a picture of the work was published, and public attention was called to the fact that officials in charge of the Public Welfare Department were taking a humane interest in these poor unfortunate.

One can imagine how it must feel for patients to be cooped up months at a stretch, and then to be allowed to get out into the fresh air and to bask in the sunshine. This factor alone is worthy of praise. But to group the patients and give them exercises is even more commendable.

I visit a relative at the sanitarium twice weekly and upon each visit, he asks me when exercises are to be given.
I told him that I would write a letter to those in charge of the institution and also to the Post-Dispatch, with the idea in mind of restarting healthful exercises for the "shut-ins." DAILY READER.

Courts Not Infallible.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
THE way some gentlemen argue against change in the procedure in United States courts advocated in your able editorial, one would think our courts were infallible.

They are governed by the same passions
as the rest of us, and when the savage nature arises in them as it does in all of us, the man hunt takes the place of reason, and alas, they are not only not infallible, but too often inhuman,
and all liberty is in jeopardy.

Humane Society and Community Fund.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
IN the Post-Dispatch for April 29 "A Sincere Lover of the Helpless" asks how about the Community Fund? Why have they eliminated the Humane Society
from their list?

The Humane Society never was on the list of the Community Fund. It applied for membership in the Community Fund and had been admitted to probationary
membership in the Community Council,
membership in which is a prerequisite for membership in the Community Fund. Before, however, it could be admitted to full
membership in the Community Council
the Humane Society voluntarily requested that it not be included as a participant in the co-operative activities of the Community Council. This request was approved by the Community Council and the Humane Society automatically became ineligible for membership in the Community Fund.

ENGLAND'S GREATEST BLUNDER.
In his speech to the House of Commons on the general strike in behalf of the coal miners Premier Baldwin referred to the futile interventions of the Government, which had temporarily arrested strikes, but had not achieved a permanent solution of the recurring conflicts in the coal industry. The Premier referred incidentally to the subsidy, which his own Government granted last July to ward off a threatened strike.

The Premier might have gone further and said that was the greatest blunder the British Government had made in connection with strike settlements. The blunder was both moral and material. It put into the minds of the labor leaders the idea that labor could win special favors from the Government by direct action, by threats of force. It put the entire coal industry on an artificial and false basis. In order to avert a strike, the Government appropriated 10,000,000 pounds from the common treasury of the nation to maintain wages, without attempting to find the causes of the trouble and to suggest ways and means of putting the coal industry on a self-supporting basis.

The result was that when the subsidy was withdrawn the industry collapsed. No progress had been made toward a permanent settlement, nor towards that sort of reorganization of the coal industry which the Premier says is imperative, if recurring conflicts are not to arise. Under the present organization Mr. Baldwin says it is almost impossible to obtain accurate data and to arrive at a sane and reasonable conclusion. The situation was as bad as when the subsidy was granted, with the difference that the coal industry was put on a false basis of earnings.

Naturally, the labor leaders having obtained governmental aid by the threat of a strike, felt assured that by organizing an ominous combination for a general strike labor could obtain anything it wanted. It could control governmental action.

England will probably muddle through and arrive at some sort of settlement, but the cost will be tremendous, and in the event of a labor victory the sacrifice will involve the very life of the Constitution and the form of government. England will be governed practically by a labor soviet. On the other hand, if the Government wins by force there will be heavy costs, through a practical state of civil war.

Of course, under the emergency proclaimed by the King, the powers of the Government are practically unlimited. The Government can seize and operate any of the country's resources or industries or means of transportation. But, after all, the exercise of this power is merely a makeshift, a war measure to preserve life, under which the co-operation of all the forces of the nation is abandoned, and one part is set against another part.

Whatever the consequences of the general strike in England, the lesson of the present situation is clear. The danger of a governmental subsidy, and its individual reform, governmental privilege, granted to any group of people, is demonstrated.

We Americans have need of that lesson. We are granting a practical subsidy to the manufacturers, through the tariff. We have put up a high wall around the nation, on the demand of the manufacturers, and are enabling them, through high protective tariffs, to fix artificial prices and make excessive artificial profits. The interests profiting by Government privilege are now in control of the Government. It may be said that the captains of industry enjoying special privilege cannot and will not strike. But they can and will. They can paralyze business as thoroughly as any one group or any combined group of labor organizations.

What we desire to submit is that, if prayer has its place on the football field, as this witness has eloquently testified, does it not also have its place in the baseball diamond? If the ayes have it, then, for goodness' sake, let our Browns and Cardinals start praying like thunder.

Suddenly our hero punctured the gloomy silence. "Fellows," he exclaimed, "I believe in prayer." They prayed, all of them, and then went in and wallowed the enemy to a fare you well. Whether such strategy was strictly ethical, whether it conformed to the canons of sportsmanship, may distress some folks. Not us. Neither are we going to ask the obviously smart question as to whether the opposing eleven prayed and, if so, has their faith been shattered?

What we desire to submit is that, if prayer has its place on the football field, as this witness has eloquently testified, does it not also have its place in the baseball diamond? If the ayes have it, then, for goodness' sake, let our Browns and Cardinals start praying like thunder.

"The churches have no copyright on this thing. It belongs to the football field just as much as to the pulpit." The preacher, a football star of Northwestern University, was talking of prayer. He gave a pointed illustration. Just before one of the big games last fall, he said, the situation was anxious. As in the case of that Mudville team, which DeWolf Hopper has occasionally told about, "it looked extremely rocky."

Suddenly our hero punctured the gloomy silence. "Fellows," he exclaimed, "I believe in prayer." They prayed, all of them, and then went in and wallowed the enemy to a fare you well. Whether such strategy was strictly ethical, whether it conformed to the canons of sportsmanship, may distress some folks. Not us. Neither are we going to ask the obviously smart question as to whether the opposing eleven prayed and, if so, has their faith been shattered?

Wayne B. Wheeler, the high priest of the Anti-Saloon League, says that lawlessness "forced the nation to demand the adoption of the eighteenth amendment." Another case of the cure being more deadly than the disease.

MYTHICAL PURPLE AND IMAGINARY ERMIN.

Prince Victor Napoleon, pretender to the throne of France through the Bonapartist line, follows the Duke of Orleans to the grave. Orleans, who died recently, represented the pretensions of the Bourbons. Are these the last leaders of the old factions? By no means. The Duke of Guise has already donned the mythical purple as Orleans' successor. Louis, Victor's son, is only 12 years old, and is too young to follow his father as a full-fledged pretender, so they are talking of establishing a regency until he comes of age.

Thus the old mummery continues, and France recognizes it to the extent of exiling the chief mummies. For nearly 60 years France has been a Republic, yet it fears these undistinguished heirs of dead dynasties.

The heavy perfume of Bourbonism still clings.

The hypnotic influence of the great Napoleon still causes Frenchmen to stir uneasily in their sleep. It is a fearsome tradition of blood and plunder.

At Versailles the decadent and artificial beauty which typified the later Bourbons still fascinates the Gallic mind. When the French plan a garden, make a chair, fashion a dress, give a party, they pay tribute to the Louis. If the Bourbon influence in politics has become negligible it survives in some measure in every household. Similarly, every barrack, every big gun, every flag, every Gallic dream of grandeur brings images of the man who incubated the germ of empire with a whiff of grapeshot.

These are some of the reasons why the line of pretenders survives, why the Duke of Guise seizes the imaginary ermine of the Duke of Orleans, and why Victor Napoleon's succession is being planned with infinite care.

THE BIG PARADE.

Those sentimentalists who saw "The Big Parade" as a sour preachment against the heroisms of war must have missed the surreptitious glory that lurks throughout this magnificent film. There have been attempts in books and plays to reduce the great war to a Parisian liaison against a background of trench life, cursing soldiers and mud. Perhaps the embittered man who wrote "Plumes" and "What Price Glory?" began his scenario for the movies with the intention of stripping the big parade of its heroic luster. A suspicion of such intent creeps out in the subtitles and the central figure at a high moment of combat cries: "They cheered for us when we left and they'll cheer for us when we get back, but what the hell do we care after this?"

Yet cynical words cannot tie the picture down to a stinking earth. Jim and Bull and Slim, the soldiers three, swear and shovel manure, flirt and joke, chew tobacco and drink wine and sledge on weary feet toward grandeur. It is in the battle scenes that "The Big Parade" takes on new colors. A soldier cannot cheapen the high bravery of an advance against machine-guns fire by spitting at a dead German. The diabolism of a bayonet charge behind barrage thunderings cannot be muted by orderlies who talk profane slang. When Bull, groveling in the slime of No Man's Land, calls out: "I'll meet you in Berlin," the thinness of a catchword on dying lips is turned to precious stuff. The war was greater than the individuals who fought it.

Slowly, out of the factitious stumbling of "The Big Parade" toward front-line trenches, there grows a true picture of what "the big show" meant. This picture, for all its realism, sounds the poetry of Kilmer, Brooks and McRae. It is well that the public may see from the photographic truth of battles a subtlety of death and sacrifice which no materialistic interpretation can quite erase.

MISS LAURALOUISE PRICE.
MISS PRICE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent L. Price of 6320 Forsythe boulevard, will depart in June for San Diego, Calif., to join her mother, who has leased an apartment for the summer. Mrs. Price will leave for California, June 15.

spent the winter with the Kaufmans, will sail May 22 for Honolulu. They will return in a month and Mrs. Woods will accompany her daughter to St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. McPheeters of 5093 Waterman avenue and their family will spend the summer at Biddeford Pool, Me., leaving St. Louis about July 1. Mrs. McPheeters and her mother, Mrs. John Dwight Filley of 40 Westmoreland place returned Thursday evening from a two months' trip to Europe. Mr. Filley returned some time ago. They visited England and the French and Italian Riviera.

Mrs. Arthur E. Shepley of 509 Estemoreland place is expected home from New York, where she is the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Edward Lawrence Keyes III. She accompanied Mrs. Keyes home following the latter's visit here.

Barry Townly of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Townly, and Miss Ruth Rendleman, of New York, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Rendleman of Cairo, Ill., were married at noon Monday in New York. The ceremony was witnessed by the bride's brother-in-law, R. Conklin McPherson, and Miss Louise Clark. Mrs. Townly several months ago made her home at Hotel Chase. She is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar E. Niedringhaus of 4447 Pershing avenue departed this morning for New York to sail for a five months' European tour. Their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Warner Niedringhaus of 4629 Pershing avenue, and Miss Claire Garneau of the La Due road, will sail May 10, plan to meet the travelers and make the return trip together.

Mr. George R. Wendling of 4505 Pershing avenue will return home tomorrow from a fortnight's visit in New York.

Miss Stuart M. Butler of 6349 Wydown boulevard, will leave St. Louis May 15 for Los Angeles, to see her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. F. Edgar Kauffman, and their two weeks' old son, Mr. Butler and her mother, Mrs. John Parkman Woods, who has serious illness.

The Second Baptist Church will give a reception to members of the church and congregation, ministers and members of other denominations and interested citizens, to meet the new pastor, the Rev. Avery Jones, and Mrs. Jones, Friday evening, at the church, Kingshighway boulevard and McPherson avenue.

His caricatures, which are done in crayon, have been widely reprinted.

After this he wrote his own sketches. One of them was the nucleus of his first play, "The Torch Bearers." It was immediately successful. He followed this with "The Show Off," and last autumn with "Craig's Wife." Kelly himself has directed each of his plays, and has done it with infinite care.

"Craig's Wife" is a play of marriage. The husband, devoted to his mother and after her death, to his aunt, stands terrified before his wife. The wife, feeling she can put no dependence on her husband, has ruthlessly endeavored to secure the spiritual possession of their home, so that neither her husband nor anyone else can eject her. In a scene of nerve-racking intensity, she triumphs and her husband, and his aunt leave her to her barren victory.

GREATEST NEED OF THE WEST.

From the Davenport Times.

HOWER makes a plea for the development which means most to this section. He emphasizes the benefits which will come to industry and agriculture through the creation of a Mississippi valley waterways system and opening up a route to the sea via the Great Lakes. The importance of this improvement cannot be minimized except to the detriment of the Middle West. Whatever reductions may be secured in railway freight rates through demands made by the grain growers would be inconsequential when compared to the benefit which would accrue through ability to move their product by water. This development means much to the cities, for it will facilitate their industrial growth. Never before in the history of mankind has it been possible for a great population to live 1,800 miles from the sea. The railroad made it possible for the West to grow and prosper, but with the opening of the Panama Canal, the rough equality in freight rates which put us on a competitive parity with the coast sections was overtaken. There is only one way to overcome this disadvantage and that is to use the water routes to the sea.

This Summer—prepare for year 'round comfort

A revolutionary method—a firmly established manufacturer.

Silent Automatic Oil Heat has been developed by a strong combination of widely known engineers. It is manufactured by an organization with a financial background of unquestioned stability and permanence. Nobody but men of this standing would dare to do what these have done; sweep aside old theories, eliminate the blower, devise a new principle and so simplify oil burning that it could be offered at a price years in advance of the times, $350 completely installed, ready to operate.

The new flame—a radiant shell of silent flame.

In place of a fiercely burning flame projected by a blower, the Silent Automatic produces a shell of radiant, silent fire that hugs the walls of the fire box, and slowly whirls.

As the vapor mixture burns, the flame swings around and around the walls, bathing every square inch of surface with radiant fire. This slow movement permits every possible heat unit to be absorbed by the heating surfaces, and stack temperatures are extremely low. No flame is wasted.

Now is the time to have your Silent Automatic installed.

The earlier you order your Silent Automatic, the quicker you say good-bye forever to coal shoveling, ash carrying, basement cleaning, and all other work and worry that old fashioned heating methods involved.

Where tanks are to be placed out of doors there is another advantage. Burying the tank early gives the ground a chance to settle, and does away with regrading and sodding in the season when your lawn is at its best.

There will be many cool evenings this Summer and early Fall when you will appreciate thoroughly and enjoy the remarkable convenience of Silent Automatic Oil Heat.

We urge you not to wait until Fall to place your order. If you arrange now for installation, you will avoid possible disappointment and delay next Fall.

Installed with complete automatic safety and operating control equipment heretofore found only on the highest priced machines.

Cost of tank for each installation depends upon oil storage desired.

Special Summer Offer

To avoid disappointment later, we urge you to have your Silent Automatic installed now. As a special inducement for Summer installations—you can make a small down payment with your order and wait until heating season to pay balance. Prepare now for year 'round comfort.

Years of Research result in the burner that conservative buyers have been waiting for—

The doom of the coal bin and ash pile is foretold by the arrival of this silent and absolutely dependable burner at a record low price.

This announcement is intended for conservative buyers who have been waiting for perfected oil heat.

It is aimed at home owners who knew that some day a silent burner, simple and trouble-proof, would be placed on the market at moderate cost.

To you we have to say this:

Silent Oil Heat has at last become a fact. The roar of the oil flame has been conquered.

A burner has been perfected that is so simple, so sturdy, and built over a principle of such positive action that even minor trouble is only a remote possibility.

This very simplicity makes possible a price that is not approached by that of any other burner of the power type—$350 installed with complete automatic safety and operating control equipment.

The combination of price plus principle presents oil heat in a form that it can at last be the universal heat for the American home. The burner is "Silent Automatic"; the Noiseless Oil Burner.

Silent Automatic is not a dazzling new discovery. It is not the brilliant, over-night idea of some inventor. Such ideas are seldom perfect.

Instead, Silent Automatic is the product of years of labor, research and development. It has been engineered by some of the best known and most capable men in the industry. It is made by a solid, substantial manufacturer with whom responsibility "stays put." It is conservatively sold as a tested and proved product with unquestioned success already behind it.

A truly marvelous principle—"the hollow shell of radiant flame" gives Silent Automatic a remarkable efficiency rating. It makes possible a guarantee covering every burner that cannot be duplicated, and this guarantee is our Gospel.

Any boiler or furnace can be equipped with Silent Automatic in a few hours time. We ask the opportunity of showing you how simply it is done.

Information will not obligate you, but it will show you how to rid yourself of the coal bin and ash pile, how to free yourself and wife of the fire-tending nuisance, and how to have the most uniform, most dependable heat ever devised for the home.

Either a telephone or personal call will bring you the entire, convincing story.

Absolute control of temperature at your finger tips.

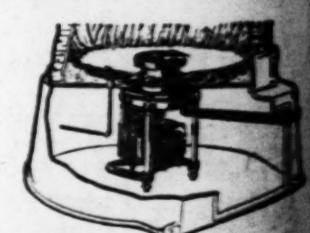

With Silent Automatic Oil Heat you light your fire once in the fall and it is fit for all winter. Temperatures are regulated by a standard automatic thermostat. You set the thermostat at any desired temperature, and this temperature is maintained without any attention whatever. By means of the thermostat you cause the fire to "come off" at any time in the morning, insuring comfort when you arise. Think of this convenience when compared with the old way of building fires, "banking" them for the night, and going through another winter of fussing and mussing with a coal fire.

Burns any fuel oil and CAN'T clog.

One big, outstanding feature of the Silent Automatic is that it will burn any approved fuel oil, and burn it safely and uniformly. The smallest opening through which fuel passes in the burner is a full one-fourth inch in diameter (see illustration above). There is no fuel oil sold that cannot pass freely and easily through this big passage.

This feature is a guarantee against fuel oil shortage. You are not limited to the use of any fuel, the supply of which is controlled by any one company. You can buy any approved oil, and burn it with confidence.

Installed in ANY boiler or furnace without brick work or change.

The installation of the Silent Automatic Oil Burner is so simple that it requires only a few hours time. No brick-work is required. The only furnace alteration is a hearth which takes the place of the grates in the fire box, and this is a very simple job. The illustration above shows how it is done. This simple installation enables Silent Automatic to quote a price of $350 completely installed, tested and ready to operate.

APPEAL OF WILLIAM KINNEY IN LIQUOR CASE DISMISSED

St. Louisan Convicted in Jack Daniel Conspiracy Eligible to Apply for Parole Soon.

William Kinney's appeal from his 18 months' sentence, on his conviction in the Jack Daniel whisky conspiracy, has been dismissed by Kinney's attorney, Wayne Ely. Kinney has served four months in Leavenworth prison, and will be eligible to apply for parole in two months more.

Kinney and Arnold J. Hellmich, former Chief of Internal Revenue, declined to apply for release on bail, after such release was obtained by M. J. Whalen, Nat Goldstein and others through an appeal to the United States Supreme Court. Kinney's appeal would have come up for hearing with the others next week in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago. He is a former Deputy in the Internal Revenue office here.

NIGHTLY SERVICE FOR AIR

MAIL ROUTE IS PLANNED

New York-Chicago Changes Will Not Alter Schedules Between
St. Louis and Chicago

Nightly service on the New York-Chicago air mail route will begin May 15, to replace present service which does not operate on Saturdays, Sundays, holidays or days preceding holidays, it was announced today at Washington.

The change will bring no alteration in the schedule of the Robertson Aircraft Corporation contract route between here and Chicago. Maj. William B. Robertson, president, said today he would continue to eliminate Saturday and Sunday flights northward and Sunday and Monday flights south, unless the public should demand a service for the service, either through volume of mail or by applications for passenger service, which the company is also prepared to supply.

Umpires—Ormsby, Morarity, Attendance—1500.

By Ed Bang.

Sports Editor, the Cleveland News.
CLEVELAND, O., May 4.—George Uhle and Elam Vangilder, both right-handers, were the opposing pitchers in the second game of the series between the Browns and Cleveland Indians here this afternoon.

Luke Sewell and Willie Schang were the backstops.

A small crowd of 1500 braved the chilly weather to see the game.

McManus still was out of the Browns' lineup and Robertson again covered third.

Owens, Ormsby and Morarity were the umpires.

The game:

FIRST INNING.
BROWNS—Bennett beat out a hit to Uhle. Mellilo struck out. Bennett was trapped off first but Burns dropped L. Sewell's throw and Bennett slid back safely. Burns drew an error. Sisler forced Bennett. Spurgeon to J. Sewell. Williams doubled to right. Sisler stepping at third. Robertson doubled to left, scoring Sisler and Williams and took third when Jamieson fumbled the ball. Rice was out. Burns to Uhle. TWO RUNS.

CLEVELAND—Jamieson singled to left. Spurgeon beat out a hit to Gerber. Jamieson stepping at second. Speaker sacrificed. Schang to Sisler. J. Sewell rolled to Gerber and Jamieson was trapped between third and home, but Joe beat the Brown play and slid safely back to third and the play turned to Spurgeon, who was running between second and third. Schang was slow in throwing the ball and Spurgeon got back to second safely and the bases were filled. Burns singled to center, scoring Jamieson and Spurgeon, but J. Sewell was out at third. Bennett to Robertson. Burns our second. Robertson threw our second. Robertson threw our second. Robertson threw our second. TWO RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

BROWNS—Spurgeon tossed out Schang. Gerber beat out a single along the third-base line. Vangilder fanned. Spurgeon threw out Bennett. NO RUNS.

MEMORY GONE AFTER ACCIDENT, YET PITCHER HURLS WELL 5 INNINGS

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 4.—Al Mamau, Newark International League pitcher, is suffering from convulsions, caused by a possible fracture of the skull. He received the injury in Saturday's game with Buffalo when a seemingly harmless foul tip in the third inning hit him on the head.

He was rushed to the hospital and returned to the mound and pitched well for five innings, although he had virtually lost his memory and had only a hazy recollection of what happened.

After the game, it was discovered the seriousness of his injury and he was ordered to bed. He is still under the care of a surgeon, although his condition is not considered critical.

Describing his sensations, Mamau said: "I felt a dull thud. After that everything was blurred, and like a flash came the picture of a ball player dying in the Polo Grounds clubhouse one warm day in 1928."

"It was the vision of Ray Chapman, the Cleveland shortstop, killed by a bullet in the head while playing with Brooklyn, then and there we had an off day we went over to see the New York-Cleveland game."

"After that I have absolutely no recollection of what happened in last Saturday's game."

Washington Net Team Opposes Sooners Today

Bears Face One of Strong Valley Tennis Combinations.

The Washington U. tennis team meets the University of Oklahoma here this afternoon in the first match of the season for the net men. The locals own visitors here is only a slight margin separating the leaders from the tallies rests the only comfort the Cardinals can find in their five straight defeats.

In their one Massoud Valley match thus far, the Oklahoma U. men took all six matches from the Oklahoma Aggies, losing a single set. That a strong team has been developed at Norman is measured from the fact that one man from the two Oklahoma doubles teams was a Missouri key finalist in last year's tournament.

Brooklyn is setting the pace with victories and six defeats, while the Boston Braves, in the cellar, have won six and lost 12, being 10th in the half games below the leaders. The Cardinals have won four games behind them, yet they are only four games behind the leaders, though they have added now to sixth place in the standings and are tied with Pittsburgh with eight victories and 11 defeats.

"There's our only comfort," said George Hornsby, yesterday. "Of course games won now count as much as games won in the stretch, but it does take some of the sting out of the misfortune to see strong neighbors having their troubles, too."

For instance we know the Pilots have a good team and we see the Cubs can't stand the ace they're setting. They've been playing for more than two months now and will crack soon. But the Pilots will be up there and so will us. There's a lot of good ball clubs in both leagues far from the positions they will occupy when hot weather and the real baseball test arrive."

Huntzinger to Hurl Today.

This afternoon Walter Huntzinger, former New York Giant, will try to stop the losing streak of the Cardinals and he will have as his opponent Adolpho Luque, who is the right is about as good a pitcher as there is in the league.

While the single match will hold their share of attention, local court fans will turn most of their interest toward the doubles game which the Oklahomans will exhibit.

Specializing in teamwork, the doubles teams from Norman have had the upperhand in Valley tennis for several seasons.

Sigliff has been moved to ranking Bear player following his display at the Bear's Southern trip last week.

After chop-stocking his way for the past five years into a high local junior ranking, Weinstein Bear left-hander, has added a trick to his repertoire. A recent development for the father intercollegiate champion, he brought his new drive into action against Vanderbeek when he swamped an opponent with a bewildering assortment of drives and chips.

RICE AND WEBER ARE HANDICAP LEADERS

Ed Rice and George Weber were the pace setters last night in the doubles in the City Handicap tournament with a count of 1275, including 117 pins handicap. Rice's record of 1275, inclusive, from July 19 to Aug. 23, is 1st for the association championship at Olympia Fields.

The revised handicap list cuts down the number of players in the first flight and creates a fifth division. First flight players are those registered from scratch to an allowance of 5; second, 6 to 9; inclusive; third, 10 to 14, including fourth, 14 to 18, inclusive; fifth, 18 to 22, inclusive. The limit for the association championship is an allowance of 18. Players have the privilege of advancing by good play. These changes were made in view of new participants following the opening of the 1926 season.

Washington Net Team Opposes Sooners Today

Bears Face One of Strongest Valley Tennis Combinations.

The Washington U. tennis team meets the University of Oklahoma here this afternoon in the third match of the season for the Bear net men. The locals own victories thus far over Sewannee and Vanderbilt, meeting their first Missouri Valley opponents of the season in the Oklahomans this afternoon.

In their one Missouri Valley match thus far, the Oklahoma U. net men took all six matches from the Oklahoma Aggies, losing but a single set. That a strong team has been developed at Norman is assured from the fact that every man from the two Oklahoma U. doubles teams was a Missouri Valley finalist in last year's tourney. The visitors will be led by Capt. Royer, ranking player, who was runner-up to Forrester, 1925 Missouri captain, in last year's Missouri Valley singles championships. All four singles players are reported of approximately even caliber, a condition similar to that which exists among the Bear quartet. The tentative ranking for the Bears' team this afternoon will bring Sigloff against the Oklahoma captain. Following Sigloff the Bears will engage in the order of Weinstock, Gustafson, and Clifford.

While the singles matches will hold their share of attention, local court fans will turn most of their interest toward the doubles game which the Oklahomans will exhibit. Specializing in teamwork, the doubles teams from Norman have had the upperhand in Valley tennis for several seasons. Sigloff has been moved to ranking Bear player following the form displayed on the Bears' Southern trip last week.

After chop-stroking his way for the past five years into a high local junior ranking, Weinstock, Bear left-hander, has added a real drive to his repertoire. A very recent development for the former interscholastic champion, he brought his new drive into action against Vanderbilt when he swamped an opponent with a bewildering assortment of drives and chops.

Gustafson, who like Sigloff is a strong back-court player, has been exhibiting a steady brand of ball while gradually rounding into shape. Clifford, who has been having some difficulty with his serve, has shown some accurate placement work which contributes helpfully to the doubles scoring of the Weinstock-Clifford team.

CARDS, DESPITE FIVE STRAIGHT DEFEATS, ARE TIED WITH PIRATES

HUNTZINGER TO HURL AGAINST LUQUE TODAY

Cincinnati Takes First Game of Series, 9 to 6, When Keen Loses Control and Cards Lose Punch.

By J. Roy Stockton. That's a great race in the National League and in the fact that there is only a slight margin separating the leaders from the tailenders rests the only comfort the Cardinals can find in their five straight defeats.

Brooklyn is setting the pace with six victories and six defeats, while the Boston Braves, in the cellar, have won six and lost 12, being one and a half games below the leaders.

The Cardinals have dropped five successive games, yet they are only four games behind the leaders, though they have tumbled now to sixth place in the standings and are tied with Pittsburgh with eight victories and 11 losses.

"There's our only comfort," said Rogers Hornsby, yesterday. "Of course games won now count as much as games won in the stretch, but it does take some of the sting out of the misfortune to see strong neighbors having their troubles, all the same. For instance we know the Pirates have a good team and we know the Cubs can't stand the pace they're setting. They've been going for more than two months and will crack soon. But the Pirates will be up there and so will we. There's a lot of good ball clubs both leagues far from the positions they will occupy when neither the real baseball test arrives."

Huntzinger to Hurl Today.

This afternoon Walter Huntzinger, former New York Giant, will try to stop the losing streak of the Cardinals and he will have as opponent Adolpho Luque, who, when he is right is about as good pitcher as there is in the league, according to Vance. He always has baffled the Cardinals.

Cincinnati won the opening game of the series yesterday afternoon, 9 to 6, because Vic Keen, hero for the Cardinals in the sixth inning, lost his control in the sixth and perhaps that's why Keen remained on duty until the Reds had scored four runs and taken the lead away from Hornsby's men.

Cincinnati had scored three in the third on Piechnich's double, Emmer's single off Keen's foot, Pipp's walk and Roush's double to center, but the Cardinals had entered with four in their half, putting them to lead 4 to 3.

Then in the sixth Walker singled, Pipp homered, Walker and Bressler homered to Keen. Just an ordinary inning, thus far. But Keen batted for Emmer and walked and Bohne ran for Lucas. Piechnich drew a base, filling the bases and when Christensen batted for Rixey, drew the third straight pass. Pipp was forced over to plate.

Rode World Triple Steal.

Then the Reds worked a triple steal, Bohne making a clean theft of home and the others advancing. Keitze came through with a single left which scored Piechnich and Christensen.

Hornsby and his men never became that lead. Carl Mays left-hander with the submarine delivery, finished the game for Cardinals' team and held the Cards to three hits and an unearned run.

Except for the third inning the Cardinal punch was sadly absent, that frame there was a devastating attack. Blades opened with a pass and Mueller singled center. Hornsby cracked a single to right and Bottomley tripled to right center. Hafey sent a right through short too hot for Emmer. It went for double scoring Bottomley. But that was all. Bell, O'Farrell and Keen failed to hit and the tally was checked.

Haines pitched the last three frames for the Cards and was touched for three hits and was two runs.

Legere to Ride Bubbling Over In the Derby

Mack Garner Will Have Mount on Rhinoceros — Sande to Try Again.

By the Associated Press. LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 4.—Jockeying for jockeys, a serious business, has begun in earnest as turfmen try to obtain the most capable boys to pilot their entries in the Kentucky Derby, May 15.

Joseph E. Widener, Philadelphia sportsman, "scooped" his fellow breeders by signing Earl Sande, winner of two derbys, including the one last year when he jockeyed Flying Ebony to the front ahead of horses generally believed superior to the Gifford A. Cochran stable. Widener has three eligibles, and Sande probably will ride Haste, the most likely looking of the trio.

E. R. Bradley, Lexington, has given E. Legere the mount on Bubbling Over for the derby. Legere has been riding with unusual success during the spring meet at Lexington. Bradley has seven other nominees, at least two or three of which are now considered certain starters.

Mack Garner, veteran pugilist artist, has been engaged to ride Rhinoceros, Parkview Stable's good colt.

A number of the leading stables have a string of jockeys under contract and spirited rivalry develops among the boys in an effort to win a mount in the $50,000 added race.

Should Sande again ride a winner he will have accomplished a feat that has not been done since I. Murphy piloted his third winner in 1891, after having won in 1890 and 1884. Sande and J. Loftus are the only two who have won two derbys in the last 20 years.

Suzanne When 13 Was Tennis Star

By the Associated Press. PARIS, May 4.—Speed and accuracy are the secrets of success in tennis. Papa Lenglen has told L'Auto, the French sporting paper, in an interview on the success of his daughter, Suzanne.

"When Suzanne was young she was frail and delicate," Papa Lenglen said. "I wanted to develop her physique. I first thought of swimming, but remembered that I had been a tennis player in my youth and began to give her 15-minute lessons daily. Reports that I made her play the same stroke 20 times over until she placed the ball in the exact spot I indicated are pure legend, but speed and accuracy are what I concentrated on."

One day, he said, the Bordighera club invited the Nice club to send its best players to a tournament. Mme. Lenglen and Suzanne went to the tournament. Suzanne being the nabob 13. The secretary of the club received the pair and asked Mme. Lenglen to get ready for play.

"I am not going to play; it is my daughter," she said.

The secretary grimaced and answered: "The Nice club must be hard up for players to send out children."

"Well, the little girl won everything to the stupendous satisfaction of the spectators," said Papa Lenglen. "Another day at the Casino I asked a fortune teller if my daughter would become champion of France. The woman smiled and replied: 'Better than that. Oh yes, much better than that.' After that I had nothing to say against those who foretell the future."

He Gets a Homer.

W. GRASSMAN - WILLIAMS was credited with a home run in the ninth inning of the last Detroit game, although only one run was needed to win the contest. The rule was changed a few years ago so as to credit the batter with a home run in case he knocked the ball out of the park with men on base and only one tally needed to win, by the club last at bat.

The rule was altered when Babe Ruth was in his glory. It was found that he lost credit for several homers hit out of the park. Under the old conditions, Williams would have been credited with a double for scoring a man from second base.

MINNESOTA RIFLE TEAM WINS R. O. T. C. TROPHY

CHICAGO, May 4.—The University of Minnesota rifle team, which won the senior trophy for the year in the William Randolph Hearst R. O. T. C. rifle tournament, was Minnesota's second year in the competition.

It was the second year in the Spartan High School of the

second year in the

Boston University

with 981, and Wisconsin

with 973.

Southwestern High School of the

second year in the

Boston University

with 981, and Kemper Military School

with 973.

CHICAGO, May 4.—American fencers last night won the first series of bouts against England

in the Robert M. Thompson trophy defeating the invaders at 70-5.

Greatest Reduction in Industrial Pursuits, Largest

Took From Traffic—Remedial Measures Urged.

Lack of effective safety measures is costing St. Louis $100,000,-

000 annually, or about $274,000 a day. Girard C. Varnum, secretary and manager of the St. Louis

Safety Council, declared in his annual report, made public today.

Accidents take a toll of about 500 lives each year in St. Louis alone, besides causing an unes-timated number of injuries. The money estimate is based on a survey of the economic losses to society through deaths and injuries.

For every accidental death, it is estimated that there are 25 serious injuries, someone being crippled or maimed for life," the report said. "This means 12,500

cases, and if we give them an average of $2000, which 'a merely a paltry sum for an injury they may have sustained, we find the loss in this class alone over $25,000,000."

Present Losses Felt in Future.

The report pointed out that the money which can be secured

under the laws of Missouri for an accidental death is $10,000, and adds that computed on this basis

the monetary loss caused by accidental deaths is $5,000,000.

"Loss of service to society cannot be measured in dollars and cents," the report said. "When a fatal accident occurs to the father,

the breadwinner is gone. There is no money in his pay envelope.

There are still as many children to feed. No one to help the mother

in the responsibility of raising them. Mother often goes to work to support the family. Children are deprived of an education in most cases. Their lack of education

often is reflected in their future

in reduced earning capacity and thus in reduced service to society

problem.

Safety means inspiration," the

report continues. "We are living in

—the fastest age of any the world

has ever seen. Civilization demands

estimate the savings incident to

prevention of accidental deaths,

the report says that if the ratio of

deaths in 1917 due to accidents can

SAFETY MEASURES
SAVED 1713 LIVES
IN EIGHT YEARSNEW YORK WOMAN OBSERVES
HER 111TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Delina Filkins Rises at 5:30

A. M., Makes Own Bed and Eats

Hearty Breakfast.

By the Associated Press.

JORDANVILLE, N. Y., May 4.—Today

was only one of the 40,000 odd

days in the life of Mrs. Delina

Filkins, but to her neighbors it was the one hundred and eleventh birthday of the oldest woman in the world, so far as known.

Only for the congratulatory calls of friends and old acquaintances

she would have passed the day

much as she has the others. She rises every morning at 5:30, eats a hearty breakfast, makes her own beds, sews, does a few things around the house, and uses her spare time for reading.

Mrs. Filkins is as much abreast of the times as the youngest flapper.

She insists that her clothes

must conform to fashion's latest decrees, but she draws the line on the abbreviated skirt.

When she reads the newspapers

and the finer type of her Bible,

Mrs. Filkins uses her spectacles,

and her hearing is slightly impaired. Illness—an operation last

—has kept her in bed only once

and then she cared for herself a day after the surgeon had completed his work. Two days later

she was out of bed.

Mrs. Filkins was born in the town of Stark, five miles from Jordanville, May 4, 1815.

Her Counsel Will Ask That Lord

Ashbourne's Sister Be Sent to Asylum for Life.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 4.—Counsel for Miss

Violet Albinia Gibson, sister of Lord

Ashbourne, who attempted to assassinate Premier Mussolini on April

7, will plead that she is insane and will ask that she be placed in an insane asylum for life.

A judicial committee, including the prosecutor, Miss Gibson's defenders and medical experts, today

paid the visit prescribed by law

upon the Premier in order to judge

the gravity of his wound. The committee reported that the wound in the Premier's nose was being repaired by a pistol bullet of small caliber, was entered.

Prof. Enrico Ferri, considered

one of the greatest exponents of Italian criminal law, was among Miss

Gibson's counsel.

There is a possibility, Ferri said,

that the defense might include in its testimony regarding the mental condition of Miss Gibson a psychological study of Mussolini himself.

Prof. Ferri said that he would attempt to prove that Miss

Gibson was a lucid madwoman.

Several times during her life, he said, she had been a patient in England, France and Italy and had attempted suicide. On one occasion, some years ago, she tried to kill a girl friend with a knife,

saying that she desired to repeat the sacrifice of Isaac by Abraham.

Other Factors of Costs.

In addition to costs which,

the report says, can approximately be figured perhaps on a basis of what they might actually secure in the courts, it is necessary to add

many other factors, including the cost of insurance premiums, cost of installation of signs, signals, safety

zones, street markings, loss through demolization of factories, transportation, public utility facilities, replacement cost of both men and machines through accidents, and the cost of the maintenance of city departments dealing with the safety

problem.

Safety means inspiration," the

report continues. "We are living in

an age of progress, the 'motor age'

—the fastest age of any the world

has ever seen. Civilization demands

safety as its self-defense."

Asserting that it is impossible to

estimate the savings incident to

prevention of accidental deaths,

deaths in 1917 due to accidents can be taken as a criterion, the trend is downward.

Saving of 1713 Lives.

In 1917, the report says, there were 110 deaths from industrial accidents, while in 1925 the number had decreased to 20, representing an accumulative saving of 610

lives in the eight years, and a monetary saving estimated at $1,100,- 000.

Similar saving in lives and money

is recorded through the decrease

of accidental deaths on steam

REBOUND IN STOCK LIST; TRADE SLOW

Short Covering Factor in Closing Session After Early Selling—Comparative Firmness of Sterling Exerts Influence on Market.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, May 4.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"Efforts of speculators for the decline to capitalize on unsettlement arising from the British general strike and force prices of securities to lower levels than were fluctuated in the stock market today. Value of standard industrial and leading favorites in the rail and specialty groups recorded a steady recovery, led by General Electric, Woolworth, Dupont, Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Corning. The market with steel which began quickly recovered their short commitments. The volume of business barely exceeded 1,000,000 shares. Mixed tendencies developed in the foreign market, although it remained一片ful at 51 per cent. Government and rail issues were well supported, while some of the foreign bonds and industrials were more freely offered."

Sterling Again Supported.

The comparative firmness of sterling rates was one of the encouraging features of the day and went a long way toward restoration of confidence in the financial district. Evidence was again supplied that Great Britain was supported by the pound sterling here through banks with British connections and at 44.85% the rate was off only 3¢ and still above the gold export level. It could not be denied that the pound would find it necessary at this time to make use of the $300,000,000 credit established here a year ago, when the gold standard was adopted. The volume of business was small and trading was encouraged by the absence of selling pressure, which reflected the calmness with which London viewed the day's developments. Indications are that the strike would likely be short duration, serving to decline in securities and traders showed a disposition to await further developments before extending commitments."

General Recovery in List.

"After an accumulation of selling orders had been exhausted, accompanied by a break of 1 to 3 points, the general list hardened and prices quickly worked back to yesterday's closing levels with a slackening in volume. British recoveries were effected in the foreign market but new orders increased in response to more cheerful news from London. Advice from the London financial centers that the walkout had not been entirely successful from labor's view point, together with the continued showing of security and commodity markets in London and Liverpool checked selling pressure in our markets. Pivotal stocks improved slightly, several specialties were higher, Electric, U. S. Steel, Cast Iron Pipe, Woolworth and Pullman advanced 1 to 3 points. Rail shares advanced 1 to 3 points. Rail shares were in rather good demand, New York Central, Union Pacific and Colorado Southern, featuring with upturn in equipment shares did better, while tractions showed an inclination to drag."

Weakness in France.

"In contrast to the comparative firmness in sterling, French and Belgian francs were decidedly lower. Paris and Brussels were at the lowest level in history. French francs continuing the general recession with a loss of about 4 points and Belgian francs breaking sharply lower. The low point recorded on March 8, 1924. Another new low recorded was that for Roumanian exchange. Silver exchanges were again strong while Canadian rates moved slightly."

Wheat Prices Decline.

"Reflection of the more cheerful view of the British industrial outlook became apparent to some extent in the principal commodity markets. The grain market in the cotton market were rather less pointing, although selling pressure was not heavy, and prices were helped here by weather development in the crop belt. Quotations seemed firm to date, but the decline was no more than what might have been expected under ordinary conditions. Wheat continued downward, but aside from July contracts losses were confined to wheat in the two bushels. July futures fell slightly more than 3¢ a bushel. A contributing factor in the grain market was the prospect of rains in the Northwest, which would be beneficial to crops. Corn and oats were slightly lower."

Lead Prices Decline.

SHERMAN PARK COMMUNITY CENTER TO PRESENT A REVUE
Second Annual Event to Be Held Tomorrow Night, 1000 Children Now in Classes.

Sherman Park Community Center will present its second annual Dancesante Revue tomorrow night at Sherman Center, Kingsbury and Easton.

During the past year the community dancing classes, which is one of the phases of its work, have increased to such an extent that now 1000 children between the ages of 3 and 18 take advantage of these instructions. Besides the regular dancing classes the company established a dancing class for the mothers; this class will also take part in the Revue tomorrow night.

CHAPTER 32.

August 11th.

TODAY is bright and sunny, and I am in a better mood. Edith came down this morning to an enormous stack of mail, and stared at it incredulously.

"Great heavens," she said, "not bills."

As it turned out, however, there were not bills. Her article had brought out a curious fact: almost everybody has a ghost story, and is anxious to tell it to somebody else; even the most incredulous of us, apparently, has some incident stored in his memory not capable of explanation. And a visible percentage of these victims of thrills and shivers have written to her about the ghost in the light tower.

She and Halliday are reading them on the veranda at this moment. Each has a heap of them, and such bits as this are to be heard:

"Here's a wonder," says Halliday. "Hold my hand, won't you, while I read it to you? There's some ghostly thing touching my neck at this minute."

"It's a spider," says Edith coolly. "You can wait. Listen to this!"

And so on . . .

Which reminds me that I had a visit last night from "Cuckoo" Halliday, our village Don Juan, who sells hardware over the counter to pretty village maidens, and who was dubbed "Cuckoo" some years ago by a summer visitor who saw a resemblance to Byron in him, and evidently knew the quotation.

Haddy was slightly sheepish. He knows, and he knows I know, that his road home at night lies nowhere near the cemetery. At the same time, he had something to tell me, and was determined to go through with it.

"I guess you've heard the story, Mr. Porter," he said. "I don't suppose I'll ever hear the last of it. But there's a mistake being made, and that is Miss Edith was going to write it up, we'd better have it straight."

It appears, then, that it was not near Carroway's grave that Haddy saw the figure, but in the old part of the cemetery, and that there are some facts which he has not given out.

The cemetery is surrounded by a white fence, and inside it is shrubbery. Haddy, it seems, was not alone, but was standing in the road, "talking to a friend." If, as I imagine, the friend was a woman, it was surely a safe place for a rendezvous!

It was the "friend" who saw the light, and who accounts for the suppression of this portion of the tale. It shone through the shrubbery, and fell in blinding white light about two feet from the ground, and directly in front of the headstone of one George Pierce, who died in the late seventeenth century.

Haddy did not see the light, but the "friend" persisting, he crept through the shrubbery to take a look around. It was then that he saw the figure moving slowly and deliberately toward the trees.

He seems to have no doubt that he saw an apparition, or that the information belongs to me, the reason he gives for the latter being that George Pierce is the gentleman who was according to local tradition, shot and killed while attempting to escape the Exile in the old farm house which is now a part of Twin Hollows.

I have entered this here, because the day seems given over to the supernatural. We have breakfasted with the spirit world, and seem about to lunch with it.

Everything continues quiet at the other house.

Jane and I today returned the Livingstons' call, although it seems absurd. I have now quite abandoned the hope of finding in Uncle Horace's unfinished letter, a clue to the present mystery.

I therefore took it with me, hoping for an opportunity to show it to Mrs. Livingston. But none came. Dr. Hayward was there when we arrived and remained after we left. Perhaps, because my own world is awry, I think the universe is so.

But it seemed to me that we were shown in to what almost amounted to a situation: that Livingston, usually dapper and calm, was flushed, and that Mrs. Livingston was on the verge of tears. The doctor, standing by the window, hardly acknowledged our entrance, and remained standing, smirking and biting his fingers, until we left.

August 12th.

August 12th.

August 14th.

Tomorrow Hayward says I shall be able to see Greenough; the first intimation I have had that he is back in the neighborhood.

But I feel that my consciousness of my own innocence will be as nothing against Greenough's sheer determination to prove me guilty. And yet, guilty of what? Of a bullet buried in the floor of my own house, and a broken window?

We have had no further crime. Nothing is altered, save my own feeling that a net is closing around me, and that some malignant fate is sitting spider fashion in the center of it, waiting to pounce on me and destroy me.

Yesterday, being allowed to read,

I found that with the single exception of the red light, my experience is fairly true to type in such matters: thousands of people have apparently gone through the same sort of thing, and have been neither better nor the worse for it afterwards.

They saw, they believed, and then dismissed it, to be dug up out of their memories later to assist somebody to write a book, or to entertain a dinner table. But in my case what?

My only hope, apparently, is to convince Greenough that I saw this thing; to show him the steps by which I was led to fire the shot; to put him, if I can, in my place for an hour or two.

Suppose, like a lawyer preparing a brief, I make my statement here, and tomorrow read it to him? At least I can make this entirely full and explicit. It passes the time, and he may be willing to listen.

At 10:30 our visitors took their departure, and leaving Jane prepared to retire and Edith to answer some of her letters, I wandered with apparent aimlessness down to the boathouse. Hallyday was not there, and as the dory was missing, I knew he was somewhere out on the water. After waiting until 11, my restlessness was extreme and I walked up and around the main house, to find the garage door open and the car still out.

Had there been any indication of life in the building, I think I would have wakened Mr. Bethel and warned him; stayed with him, perhaps, until that murderous young devil was safely settled for the night. But his room was dark and his windows closed, so I thought better of it. But I did ascertain that the gunroom doors were locked, and that if the boy effected an entrance at all, it would be from the outside.

"What has he done, Annie?"

"Done!" she said, and sniffed. "He's watching me, for one thing. I never go upstairs but he's at my heels. But that's not all. He's going to make trouble for Mr. Bethel. You mark my words. And Mr. Bethel knows it; he's scared to death."

There is a quarrel, she said, at dinner, carefully camouflaged while she was in the room, but breaking out again the moment she left it. So far as she could make out, it had to do with the secretary's leaving the house at night, and his insistence that he go out when and how he liked. But there was something beneath that, she thought. "That wasn't enough to make them stop talking," she said. "This was more in order than the boy's face, Mr. Potter."

Mr. Bethel, she thought, was trying to quiet him, but he refused to be quieted. Finally Gordon got up and flung open the pantry door, finding her inside it, and he said, according to her: "Listening, are you? Well, you'd better watch out, or you'll get something to eat." Then he went into the hall, got his hat and slammed out of the house, leaving the paralytic sunk in his chair.

"He's gone?" Where?"

"He didn't say. He just took the car and went."

"Here's a wonder," says Halliday. "Hold my hand, won't you, while I read it to you? There's some ghostly thing touching my neck at this minute."

"It's a spider," says Edith coolly. "You can wait. Listen to this!"

And so on . . .

Which reminds me that I had a visit last night from "Cuckoo" Halliday, our village Don Juan, who sells hardware over the counter to pretty village maidens, and who was dubbed "Cuckoo" some years ago by a summer visitor who saw a resemblance to Byron in him, and evidently knew the quotation.

Haddy was slightly sheepish. He knows, and he knows I know, that his road home at night lies nowhere near the cemetery. At the same time, he had something to tell me, and was determined to go through with it.

"I guess you've heard the story, Mr. Porter," he said. "I don't suppose I'll ever hear the last of it. But there's a mistake being made, and that is Miss Edith was going to write it up, we'd better have it straight."

It appears, then, that it was not near Carroway's grave that Haddy saw the figure, but in the old part of the cemetery, and that there are some facts which he has not given out.

The cemetery is surrounded by a white fence, and inside it is shrubbery. Haddy, it seems, was not alone, but was standing in the road, "talking to a friend." If, as I imagine, the friend was a woman, it was surely a safe place for a rendezvous!

It was the "friend" who saw the light, and who accounts for the suppression of this portion of the tale. It shone through the shrubbery, and fell in blinding white light about two feet from the ground, and directly in front of the headstone of one George Pierce, who died in the late seventeenth century.

Haddy did not see the light, but the "friend" persisting, he crept through the shrubbery to take a look around. It was then that he saw the figure moving slowly and deliberately toward the trees.

He seems to have no doubt that he saw an apparition, or that the information belongs to me, the reason he gives for the latter being that George Pierce is the gentleman who was according to local tradition, shot and killed while attempting to escape the Exile in the old farm house which is now a part of Twin Hollows.

I have entered this here, because the day seems given over to the supernatural. We have breakfasted with the spirit world, and seem about to lunch with it.

Everything continues quiet at the other house.

Jane and I today returned the Livingstons' call, although it seems absurd. I have now quite abandoned the hope of finding in Uncle Horace's unfinished letter, a clue to the present mystery.

I therefore took it with me, hoping for an opportunity to show it to Mrs. Livingston. But none came. Dr. Hayward was there when we arrived and remained after we left. Perhaps, because my own world is awry, I think the universe is so.

But it seemed to me that we were shown in to what almost amounted to a situation: that Livingston, usually dapper and calm, was flushed, and that Mrs. Livingston was on the verge of tears. The doctor, standing by the window, hardly acknowledged our entrance, and remained standing, smirking and biting his fingers, until we left.

He is, I understand, soon to leave for a holiday.

Tomorrow Hayward says I shall be able to see Greenough; the first intimation I have had that he is back in the neighborhood.

But I feel that my consciousness of my own innocence will be as nothing against Greenough's sheer determination to prove me guilty. And yet, guilty of what? Of a bullet buried in the floor of my own house, and a broken window?

Side-Stepping Husbands—and Good-Sport Wives.

THE "problem" of the day is not the Younger Generation, but the middle-aged "side-stepping husband," who is bored with his wife, and would like to play at "flaming youth."

Why does a man always imagine that he is the only bored member of the matrimonial firm?

Why does he think that while his own fancy may roam, his wife's fancy is bound to stay right at home and attend to its knitting?

When his eye wanders impatiently from his wife's double chin and solid virtues to some young sylph's graceful ankles or rouged cheeks, why does he never suspect that his own increasing mirth and incipient jowls are not the perfect fulfillment of all a woman's wish dreams?

Why does it never occur to him, that his wife is probably TWICE bored as he is? Only, she is too good a sport to show it!

A woman may long for a nice, fresh, thrilling romance, every bit as much as a man does. But she is too good a sport to pursue it.

A woman is thrilled at passing glance of admiration from a permissible young man quite as much as her middle-aged spouse is thrilled at a flapper's smile of invitation. But she is too good a sport to follow it.

A woman is just as much attracted by youth as a man is. But she is seldom so silly as to imagine that a boy half her age is romantically in love with her, even when he tells her so.

There are moments in the life of every woman, when she longs to break the trances and gambol on the green, and when everything about her husband, from the way he chews his celery to the way he sings his bath or snores in his sleep, bores her to tears.

But the average woman has a level head and she knows the way and the heartache of these silly middle-aged "steppings."

On yes, the world is full of bored wives—but their husbands will know it! Because a good wife is first, last and always a sport!

Little Mister Smarty

Everwhere that Smarty goes
He boasts about the things he knows.

One of these days you'll be sorry,
Mister Smarty," said his mother.

BOYS' AND GIRLS' MAGAZINE

Are you reading it? Out every week with the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Poor little Mister Smarty! Terror filled his heart and pain made that one wing throb. He fell, but caught himself on a branch and then he huddled as close to the trunk of the tree as he could. He heard the disappointed scream of Sharp Shin, as the latter swung off in time to avoid hitting the tree. For some time little Mister Smarty huddled there, too frightened to move. Of course, not moving was a good thing.

Presently he heard his mother call. He heard his brothers and sisters as they flew down to the ground in answer to that call. But he himself was too hurt and too frightened to answer and just remained there huddled in that tree. He didn't feel smart any more. No, sir, Mister Smarty didn't feel at all smart.

Finally he heard his mother calling him. Her voice sounded very anxious. He started to fly down, but instead he tumbled. He was well for him that he discovered Sharp Shin when he did, for one little second later would have been too late. Straight into that hemlock tree plunged little Mister Smarty. He didn't have time to look where he was going. He bruised himself against the branches and he struck a little sharp-pointed dead twig with such force that it drove right through the fleshy part of one wing and then broke off, remaining in the wing.

Then came a day when little Mister Smarty learned that he wasn't as smart as he thought he was. Mother Grouse suddenly gave the signal to fly. Little Mister Smarty looked all about and saw no reason to fly. "It's one of Mother's tricks," said he to himself. "It's just one of Mother's tricks. I'm not going to fly."

So he didn't fly. His brothers and sisters and Mrs. Grouse all waited for him to fly. His washing was done in half time, and he was soon dry. Sharp Shin was still in his wing. He just fell down to the ground and when he reached the ground he ran to his mother, whimpering.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST By Aline Michaelis

Victory.

HERE is a ceaseless conflict waged upon Earth's battlefield, and watchers see how Evil's forces slowly, surely yield. They see how, over and over again, the forces of man retreat, yet see how life, educated, grows gentler and more sweet. As when the night is near its end and in the eastern sky, above the shadows and the mists, dawn's rosy banners fly, so now above Earth's ancient gloom, its terror and its brood, the promise of a better day lifts up its lovely light. And ever more of truth appears, of kindliness and good, till vanquished Evil draws away, with all his brutal brood. The promise of a better day is shining like the sun; till victory is won.

Presently he heard his mother call. He heard his brothers and sisters as they flew down to the ground in answer to that call. But he himself was too hurt and too frightened to answer and just remained there huddled in that tree. He didn't feel smart any more. No, sir, Mister Smarty didn't feel at all smart.

NOTES ABOUT WOMEN

Most of the street cleaning in Berlin, Germany, is done by women. About 200,000 women in New York City are employed in clerical positions.

In the course of a year the average housewife wipes three acres of dishes.

ODE TO ZIP.

OLD ZIP is dead, the good old soul. We saw him years ago; He used to be the feature of the Barnum-Bailey show.

Twas down in darkest Arkansaw That Barnum captured Zip. And with him "Pee Tee" started in The public for to gyp.

His head was like a coconut, It tapered to a point; He proved a bigger drawing card Than any dwarf or "joint."

"What Is It?" Barnum labeled him. And made the public think, That in this famous freak he had The long-lost missing link.

The fat man and the skeleton. The armless wonder, Tripp, The Tattooed Man and Turtle Boy, Took off their hats to Zip.

In stature and mentality He seemed to be a child; His nurse dropped him upon his head And that's what made him wild.

At that, he was a thrifty bird, And saved a goodly sum, Which makes us think, that after all, Old Zip was not so dumb.
